

DEATH OF CAPTAIN LIND.—Captain John C. Lind, of Company I, Fourteenth Michigan Infantry, died at East Saginaw, on Saturday last, the 8th inst., after a long and painful illness, caused by disease contracted while in the service of his country. Captain Lind was formerly a resident of Ann Arbor, where he learned the printing business, which however, he soon abandoned, and commenced the study of law, being admitted to the Bar of Washtenaw about three years since. Although not possessed of a rugged constitution, he entered the Fourteenth Regiment as Lieutenant, and was subsequently promoted to the Captaincy. The toils and privations of active service proved too severe for him, and he was compelled to retire, and, after a lingering illness, died as above stated. He was a sober, honest and upright young man, and leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his early death.—Free Press.
